

Nancy Pendleton leads an organization in Boeing Research & Technology, The Boeing Company's advanced central research and development unit.

In her role, Pendleton serves as the vice president of Systems, Support & Analytics.

Her organization provides innovative technologies that enable the development of future aerospace solutions in key areas including artificial intelligence, autonomy, and communication and networking systems.

